

Cullowhee Native Plant Conference

July 15-18, 2015

Cullowhee, North Carolina

nativeplantconference.wcu.edu

The Cullowhee Native Plant Conference held on the campus of Western Carolina University is dedicated to the advancement of research, knowledge, and sustainable practices in native plant landscaping as well as the allied fields of horticulture and K-12 environmental and science education. The Cullowhee Conference is an informal gathering that attracts a diverse group of professionals, gardeners, educators, and students, many of whom return year after year for inspiration, knowledge, networking, and fun!

Scholarship Program

Scholarships are awarded annually to students, interns at botanical gardens, nature centers and/or parks, to beginning professionals in a native plant related field, and to K-12 environmental and science educators. Full or partial scholarships cover costs of registration fees, lodging, and meals.

To apply for a scholarship, visit the Cullowhee Conference website:

nativeplantconference.wcu.edu

Scholarship Application Deadline is Friday, April 17, 2015